

Dear Sir/Madam,

My name is Julia Quan, I am a sophomore at the University of Alabama, and I took Miss Allison Hetzel's class, TH 141, last spring

Miss Allison was one of the most fantastic teachers I have ever had. I am no longer a theater major, however, I still carry the teachings she instilled in me in my other areas for life. For instance, I learned from her the importance of hard work, perseverance, and courage to pursue one's dreams and aspirations in a professional field. Some times, I still recall valuable advice and critiques she would say in our out of class when I am in another class or situation in life. I'll just be minding my own business and that advice she used to repeat so often in class comes to mind: "Julia, you need to do this," "or you should do that." And that advice has helped me so, so much and I am so grateful.

Miss Allison's standard of excellence is something that many people may not be used to at first - she sets the bar high, but only because she is preparing her students for life because life is tough. In that way, Miss Allison carries on the true spirit of an educator who balances caring for her students while pushing them to meet their fullest potential.

Hands down, being a student of Miss Allison's was one of the most positive, influential educational experiences I have had at UA. She is a gem of a teacher and I thank her for all she has taught me. I hope that other students get the wonderful opportunity of learning from this amazing actress and teacher.

Sincerely,

Julia Quan
